

Must Disavow Or Explain Sinking Of The Arabic

London, Aug. 23.—To shatter any defense that Germany might attempt to offer for the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic, the British foreign office today issued an official statement setting forth these four facts:

1. The Arabic was not armed for defense or offense.
2. The Arabic was torpedoed without warning.
3. The Arabic made no attempt to attack a submarine.
4. The Arabic made no attempt to escape.

Attaches of the foreign office believe that the facts officially set forth will prove that the destruction of the Arabic by a German submarine was contrary to the spirit of the notes President Wilson has sent to Berlin.

The information herewith given will probably be used by the United States government in any communication sent to Germany relative to the Arabic. It involves the four vital facts upon which the American government would act.

PRINTING HOUSES PROTEST AGAINST BILL OF SEN. JONES

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 23.—Elimination of the appropriation feature of Representative Walden's pension bill to place pensions under the supervision of the state auditor may be the solution of the pension problem. It is thought by cutting the string to the $50,000 contingent appropriation of 1911 and dropping the home guards from pension rolls, no new appropriations will be necessary.

Will Complete Work.

Representatives of big Alabama printing houses will appear at 3 o'clock before the senate committee on finance and taxation in opposition to Senator Jones' bill to establish an $100,000 state printing plant.

The committee expects to complete the work on the license bill today.

A small party of legislators went to Auburn this morning to be guests of Dr. C. C. Thach at a barbecue.

An effort will be made in the senate tomorrow to pass the senate judiciary committee's substitute bill for recirculating the state.

The new bill increases the recess committee's recommendation from 23 to 24 districts and the number of judges from 25 to 32. Jefferson county will retain the present number of ten instead of eight previously recommended.

COTTON PROBLEM GROWS SERIOUS

Washington, Aug. 23.—A serious problem now confronts the Wilson administration because of the decrees of Great Britain and France, declaring cotton contraband of war. This action was taken Saturday.

Secretary of State Lansing has not yet been advised officially of this action, but the announcement cabled from London and Paris caused no surprise in administration quarters. This government has understood for some time that the staple was to be made contraband and it has prepared to protest immediately upon receipt of official notice. It is not believed that this protest will be effective but it will be made because this government believes it is justified.

The problem confronting the administration therefore is the financing and protection of the cotton crop. Relief must be afforded at home with the closing of foreign markets which have taken the surplus.

The recent statement by Comptroller of the Currency Williams gave a hint of the administration's plan. It was asserted that the national banks have sufficient reserves to take care of the entire cotton crops this year, and portions, if not all, of the wheat and tobacco crops. This would solve the problem for the present, but it is not seen how the government or banks can finance the cotton business indefinitely should the European war be long drawn out.

This furnished a source of worry for official Washington today.

England's promise of initiating measures to steady the cotton market is regarded as vague and officials do not see how it will help the situation.

The contraband decree is expected to bring protests not only from the south, but commercial interests generally throughout the country.

CANE JUICE AT DRUG STORES

Cane juice is here.

Local drug stores announced the fact Tuesday morning that they had cane juice for sale, five cents per glass, and apparently a ready demand greeted the arrival of Houston county's sweet fuel.

Every year in season cane juice is retailed at the soda fountains here, along with other soft drinks of the several varieties, and it is a good seller.

In Birmingham muscadine punch serves the same purpose that cane juice does down here. A Birmingham citizen walks into a Dothan drug store and calls for muscadine punch, which is not to be had, thank you. The Dothan man asks for cane juice in Birmingham and finds that "no such animal" is kept in stock.

Dothan is proud of her cane juice reputation, and there is no chance of getting "stewed" on this somewhat common but popular thirst quencher.

DEATH OF GEO. W. ROBERTS

Mr. G. W. Roberts, one of Henry county's oldest and most highly respected citizens passed away last Sunday night from Bright's disease at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Melvin, 5 miles southeast of Abbeville.

Mr. Roberts was a good man in every sense of the word. He joined the Masonic order in 1857 and was a good and loyal member. He has been a member of the Baptist church for 60 years or more. He married Miss Jane Ayers, who survives him, before the war between the states, and raised ten children, five girls and five boys, all of whom survive him but two boys, the oldest, Burch, and the youngest, Oren, are dead. Those living are: Jessie, of Abbeville; Ben and Robert, of Shorterville; Mrs. J. M. Melvin of Union; Mrs. H. T. Miller of Dothan; Mrs. Ben Strickland of Abbeville; Mrs. Robert Stokes of Union; and Miss Mollie Roberts, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Melvin.

Mr. Roberts was county surveyor for 30 years in Henry county. He knew more land lines

DOES GERMANY WANT PEACE?

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—The Dutch newspaper Telegraaf prints the following:

"At a secret conference of German cabinet members, political leaders and influential writers, called by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in Berlin before the re-assembling of the Reichstag, Karl Helfferich, secretary of the treasury, explained that the new German loan would exhaust the empire's financial resources and that the increase in exchequer bonds would cause national bankruptcy. Therefore Dr. Helfferich urged, it was necessary to prepare for an honorable peace.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg declared the difficulties of the empire were increasing and advised his hearers to allay the bellicose inclinations of the 'war party' and expansionists.

Dr. Bernhard Dernburg's failure of his mission in the United States made a strong impression upon the conference."

than any man in southeast Alabama, having been on nearly every tract of land in the county. While Houston was Henry, he surveyed land in Dothan before there was any town here, just pines and long horn cows and fox squirrels.

He was never a robust man, but enjoyed very good health; always had a word of humor and wit, as the older people can recall many jokes that he has gotten on them at times. He lived to be four score and two as he would have been 82 years old at his next birthday. He was buried at Union church cemetery.

May we all remember his good examples as well as the cheerful spirit in which he always met his fellow men. We know that he was ready to meet his Lord and Master, as he lived it every day.

YOUTH DIES AT MOBILE TODAY

Body of Lawrence Crawford Will Be Brought to Dothan, His Old Home, For Interment.

Never recovering from injuries sustained when he dived off the dock into St. Andrews Bay Sunday, Lawrence Crawford, better known here as "Son" Crawford, 20-year-old son of William Crawford, died this morning at Mobile where he had been taken in the hope that specialists there could save his life.

With his tongue bitten nearly in two, and his body and limbs paralyzed from the shock he sustained when his head sank in the mud, he having evidently miscalculated the depth of the water, the chances seemed to be against the recovery of young Crawford.

News of the accident was received in Dothan where Lawrence Crawford once lived, with genuine regret by the many friends of the boy and his family.

Bad Spectacle.

The Crawfords lived in a home near the bay at Panama City, Fla., and Lawrence was only a short distance from his home when he made the fatal dive Sunday.

His sister, Miss Vera Crawford, was seated on the porch at the family residence and saw her brother go under the water. She hastened to the scene, and aid was summoned. Her brother was taken out, and it was found that he had been seriously injured.

The condition of Lawrence being critical, he was rushed to Mobile yesterday, where it was hoped that specialists might save his life, but in vain. William Crawford, father of Clarence, will accompany the body of his son to Dothan tomorrow for interment here.

SUNDAY HOURS OUTLAWED BY THE SHERIFF

Drug Stores Must Close 24 Days—Cafes Must Be Good.—No Soft Drinks or Cigars to Be Sold, Says Sheriff John May.

Drug stores and particularly their patrons are hit a solar plexus blow in Sheriff John May's latest order which does away with the "Sunday hour" plan and puts the ban on drug stores keeping open on the Sabbath even during the wee hours of the early morning before Sunday School time, and the tiny hours of the afternoon.

Cafes Get Theirs.

The cafe have got theirs, too. Prior to or during the time known as Sabbath, that is being the day between Saturday and Monday, cafes must be mighty good; they must remove shocking sights like cigar stands and soda water paraphernalia. A person may eat in peace on Sunday in this town, but he must cultivate a liking for ice water, butter milk, sweet milk or tea, for there is nothing doing in the various "Cola" or "soda" lines.

Having no doubt inherited the habit from their forefathers, Dothan citizens and city visitors eat on Sunday, and the Sheriff, who long ago took into consideration this fact, has made no efforts to keep the cafes from selling cats, and probably doesn't intend to, but he has cut down on smoke weeds and sweetened waters, labeled and sold under various titles.

Is the Beginning.

In the beginning of his term of office, the Sheriff looked up the Sunday laws and found that it was a violation to sell soft drinks and cigars on Sunday. After some little experimenting, the drug stores were permitted to observe "Sunday hours" at which time they could sell drinks and cigars, while the cafes were allowed to keep open but forbidden to sell cigars and drinks. This hit the little sidewalk stands a heavy blow. The sheriff has become dissatisfied with this plan and now says the whole blooming business must "walk a chalk line," that no favorites will be played, and all will be treated alike.

Consequently, when you come down town Sunday and get a shine, don't look fondly towards the drug store in hopes of getting a "dope" for the lid will be on tight, says the Sheriff.

All the County.

Sheriff May says all the county will come under the ban of this order, and that Ashford, Arledge, Columbia and other wrong points, will be effected.

All of which indicates that Houston will be "dry" and "clean" Sunday—if it don't rain.

S. R. Dudley of Hedgepeth was here today.

A. Martin, good farmer of route 1, was here yesterday.

A SAMPLE OF NORTHERN VIOLENCE.

The Eagle prints here from the Chicago Tribune an editorial on the Frank lynching which is characteristic of the attitude of Northern papers towards Georgia and the South over this case. Following this editorial is an answer from the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Here is the full editorial from the Tribune:

LEO M. FRANK.

For a very long time the name of Leo M. Frank will be remembered as indicative of something discouraging and not wholly explicable in American life.

We know that, elsewhere than in the ill-ordered south, communities can be aroused to acts of violence against law but usually the demonstration is one of low elements and also one of hot blood.

What has taken place in Georgia is not due to mob violence. The psychology of the mob does not permit such steadfast malevolence, such a continuing purpose and determination. If a mob cannot act soon, it will die out.

Frank was murdered by men controlled by the spirit of the vendetta. In the background of his fate there was no element of law's futility to punish a crime. Law had not been indulgent to Frank. It had been severe. The questions of reasonable doubt in his case were resolved finally in his favor only to the extent that he was granted the mercy of spending the rest of his life in the penitentiary.

To this doubtful mercy, which Frank asked only as a means by which time for the disclosure of his innocence could be had, was added the terrible experience to which he was subjected when a convict cut his throat.

Frank had not been dealt with leniently. What he had gained was the smallest possible expression of doubt. He gained it at the last moment from the last man in authority to aid him at all. Every time he appealed to the law, every time without exception the law denied him the benefit of the doubt.

Therefore there had been no failure of what we regard as retributive justice. The trial judge who had denied him every plea, was discarded finally by doubt. The United States Supreme court which ruled against him, contained two justices who had doubts. The then governor of Georgia, Mr. Hiram, at last could not endure the responsibility of a conviction that there was doubt of Frank's guilt.

He obtained for him the pardon that he had so long desired. But in his heart he must be thought of because when an American community yields to lawlessness it is a mitigation however slight, if the processes of law have fallen, as occasionally they do, into disrepute and if it seem that outraged citizens had to do things which they disapproved to get justice which they demanded.

Such considerations are not involved in the Georgia case. There had been no miscarriage of justice. At its worst, assuming Frank guilty, there had been only a slight departure from the sternest code, ordered by the last man who could save Frank, to meet the pressing and irresistible fear that the convict might be innocent.

Georgia did not have an excuse of law's failure for the sentiment it cultivated regarding Frank. And it did not have, as we have said, the excuse of mob passion. Georgia society has developed men who could carry for months a premeditated policy of outrage against a human being and execute that policy in the end by taking the man away from the state and killing him.

We have said that this is not wholly explicable, and it is not. The failure of Georgia to protect the threatened man, even when he was imprisoned in a state penitentiary, reveals a fault in organization.

The present governor of Georgia, when he was told that raiders had broken into the state penitentiary and were running away with their victim to some place where they would kill him, said feebly that he was sure the good people of the state would deplore the act. We doubt it. The real protection the raiders had was the sentiment of the state, and the real disgrace in which the state stands is that sentiment.

The murder was not by a mob, but by vendetta, which is determined, cunning, resolved and cruel. A vendetta is possible in a low social organization, one which has not learned self-control, which has not been sufficiently trained in the rudiments of education to submit itself to restraints necessary to the orderly processes of society.

The south is backward. It shames the United States by illiteracy and incompetence. Its hill men and poor whites, its masses of feared and bullied blacks, its ignorant and violent politicians, its rotten industrial conditions, and its rotten social ideas exist in circumstances which disgrace the United States in the thought of Americans and in the opinion of foreigners.

When the north exhibits a demonstration of violence against law by gutter rats of society, there is shame in the locality which was the scene of the exhibition. When the south exhibits it there is defiance of opinion.

The south is barely half educated. Whatever there is explicable in the murder of Leo M. Frank is thus explainable. Leo M. Frank was an atom in the American structure. He might have died, unknown or ignored, a thousand deaths more agonizing in preliminary torture and more cruel in final execution, and have had no effect, but the spectacle of a struggling human being, helpless before fate as a mouse in the care of a cat, will stagger American complacency.

The south is half educated. It is a region of illiteracy, blatant self-righteousness, cruelty and violence. Until it is improved by the invasion of better blood and better ideas it will remain a reproach and a danger to the American republic.

A SILLY AND MEAN ATTACK.

From the Commercial Appeal: As a complete exhibit of meanness in type, we print in another column the full editorial of the Chicago Tribune on the lynching of Leo Frank.

The brain out of whose threads this editorial was woven is as anarchistic and as ignorant as was that of any man composing the mob that lynched Frank.

The lynching of Frank was an infamous, cowardly act. It has been denounced by every reputable southern paper, and by every man whose opinion is worth anything in the south.

If the lynching of Frank was a disgrace to the whole south, it equally disgraced the United States. But to seize upon the incident as a means of indicting the entire State of Georgia, is illogical, unfair and absurd.

To put all the citizenship of the south in one class and then to denounce them as utterly lawless, ignorant and worthless shows a degree of ignorance and bigotry which few of the most illiterate of the southern people are capable of reaching.

The Chicago Tribune says "the south is backward. It shames the United States by illiteracy and incompetency."

Wherein is the citizenship of the territory over which the Tribune circulates more advanced than the citizenship of the territory throughout which this paper circulates.

There is not an equality of opportunity in the Chicago territory which does not exist in the Memphis or Atlanta territory. Labor is not exploited in the south around Memphis as it is in the Chicago territory.

In proportion to property, the taxation for education is greater in the Memphis territory than it is in the Chicago territory.

The scale of living among the poor in the southern territory is higher than it is among the poor in and around Chicago.

There is crime in our territory, much of it, but it is for the most part the crime of hot blood—the breaking of the law by the forces of sudden anger.

There are not the crimes here that mark the degeneracy of people that there are in and around Chicago.

Those unlawful vices which mark the bestiality of man are rare here as compared to their number in Chicago.

We are not attempting to answer the Chicago Tribune's attack by the easy to quote method. This method proves nothing, except the folly of throwing stones from one glass house into another.

There is illiteracy in the south in proportion to the number of people greater than in some of the other parts of the United States. But illiteracy does not presuppose viciousness or meanness. An illiterate man may not be a stupid man. An illiterate community may be an intelligent community. Literacy is a tremendously fine instrument to be used in the development of humankind, but literacy alone will not save.

The south appreciates the value of education and is making tremendous sacrifices to have all of its people benefitted by that knowledge which comes from education. But all illiterate people are not bad people. Some of the strongest men who went out from Kentucky and Virginia and from North Carolina, and were pioneers in Illinois, were unlettered. A great number of those who fought in the War of the Revolution could read only a horn book, and then only by spelling out the words.

The Chicago Tribune excuses outbreaks in the north, charging them to the gutter rats of society, and alleges that there always follows shame in the community at what has been done. We wish this were always true, but it is not.

The crimes in the north which should bring a shame to the community are sometimes regarded by the community with extreme indifference. Illinois has had its lynchings almost as infamous as was the lynching of Frank. If a Lake Shore Drive lady at the same time gave a party to some Wasserman tester count the Tribune forgot the lynching for the "function."

Organized privilege, until the quickening influences of the last 10 years began to assert themselves, murdered men, women and children in factories through selfish greed. These crimes are rightly chargeable to those highest in the northern social circles.

Murder is murder, wherever it is done, but it is worse to do a murder by proxy than to commit the act in person. In the south armed guards and special deputies do not shoot down men and women who are protesting for enough money to buy food and then denounce the dead as ignorant and anarchistic labor skates.

The last paragraph of the Tribune article is the core of the malevolence of the mind that composed it.

"The south is half educated," says the Tribune. "It is a region of illiteracy, blatant self-righteousness, cruelty and violence. Until it is improved by the infusion of better blood and better ideas it will remain a reproach and a danger to the American republic."

Shall we send to Chicago and secure this "better blood" from the vicinity of the pigsties and glue factories of the south side? Shall we get it from the vicinity of Harrison Street station, from Custom House Place, from Wells Street and from the other sinks whose owners coin their degeneracies into dollars which bear no smell, and spend the money in drunken debauches at society functions?

Shall we get the blood infusion from the north side, with its divorcees and its wife swapping?

Will some of the present and past controlling owners of the Tribune come down here and by their personal conduct be to us a living example of what decent-minded, able bodied, sober Americans should be?

Or shall we take the report of the Chicago Vice Commission and the Legislative Commission on the Minimum Wage, and after reading these shall we ask for an infusion of blood from those who are the leaders in a community where such conditions exist?

In its heart the south denounced the lynching of Frank. It is a crime against the individual, against the law and against the state.

The people of the south are weak and frail, as are the other children of men. But they are not cursed with the vice of phariseism. They resent such exhibitions of malevolent cant as this cowardly and ignorance-steeped outbreak on the part of the Chicago Tribune.

PUT SULPHUR ON AN ITCHING SKIN AND END ECZEMA

Says: this old-time Eczema remedy is applied like cold cream.

Any irritation or breaking out on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.

He states that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

These troubles should obtain at any drug store an ounce of bold-sulphur, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream.

"We're going to have a game of quoits on the vacant lot back of my place this evening," said Fessenden, "and I want you to come and take a hand. It will renew your youth and make you forget your troubles."

"I haven't any troubles to forget," replied Humbelow. "When you and your gang of conspirators leave me alone, my life is one grand sweet song. I don't know what trouble is until I get mixed up with you fellows, and then it breaks loose forty ways from the jack. If I went playing quoits with you, a big horseshoe would hit me on the side of the head and put me down for the count, and when I recovered consciousness you'd be standing around waiting for me to pay for the horseshoe. "When I was convalescent, Traphagen came over and said I really ought to pay half of Bigelow's doctor bill. 'You struck at the ball that beamed you,' said he, 'and the bat flew out of your hands and hit Bigelow on the shins, and he's had to walk on his hands and knees ever since. It has cost him a lot of money for liniments and poultices, and as he is the father of a large family, he can't spare the money, and you ought to help him out.' SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Proved Daughter's Unimpaired End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Beacher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months."

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

At all druggists.

THE SOIL AND THE SOUL.

(Commercial Appeal.)

At the Cotton States Merchants Convention which closed its session in this city recently, the two speakers who will be longest remembered were the two women—Mrs. Mathis of Alabama and Mrs. Jones of Wisconsin—and they will be kept in mind because they struck at the very root of the farm problem of the whole country—the condition of the women on the farms. The man who went out of that assembly hall without a new appreciation of a wife's worth and a higher conception of his duty to her was either a "hardened sinner" or else a hopeless bachelor!

The gospel of help for the ten and better conditions for the hard-working wife, as preached by these two women, must bear fruit in improved conditions. Mrs. Mathis held up to scornful ridicule the covetous country merchant who wheedles the farmer's money from him with ineffectual offers of shotgun or other hunting paraphernalia, instead of sending him home with something a thousand times more necessary for the comfort of the home, or else with a few dollars in his pocket to share with his family.

Mrs. Jones drew a picture of the household drudge who is in name a wife, but who is allowed no partnership in the fruits of her labor, the woman who "sees no money except that her husband takes out of his pocket." The negro woman who cooks and draws her own pay is more her own mistress, in a monetary way, than is the wife of the average farmer. It will be a long time before the figures of the avocations, wheeling merchant, and the hard-worked and never paid farm woman fades from the memory of those who sat in the audience of the convention.

But there was another note struck in that convention that deserves to remain unforgettable. A man, a preacher-farmer he was from the corn belt of Illinois, said that a farm was not only a place to raise crops, but it was "a place to grow souls."

He meant, of course, that, far removed from the allurements of the city, close up to the heart of nature, with the ever-recurring proof of the resurrection of life in the sowing and the seed-time, the soul grows bigger and clearer. Men who work under the sun all day and watch the wonder of the stars at night come very near to the pulse-beat of divinity. They see God in the daily manifestations of nature, the sun rise and set, the storm, the calm, the greening of the brown-sown field

And the soul expands under the influence of an unquestioning faith.

It is a beautiful thought, and yet is there not another side to the picture? Does not the soul of the city man have as much room and opportunity to expand because it comes close to the heart of humanity and hears, forever and forever, the cry of the pitiful?

Our among the sweet, growing things of the field there is the content of faith, the undisturbed serenity that knows no scars of doubt. But is not the soul that travails and triumphs, the soul that is softened with sympathy for human woes, is it not as beautiful as the one that expands in the solitudes of the hills and growing plains?

The Nazarene said to the disciples: "Feed my sheep." And His sheep are the people of the world. "Feeding" them—helping them, ministering to them—this is to make the soul grow beautiful, and beauty like to that shines as softly under the artificial lights of the paved city as does on the furthest meadows under the far, white stars.

Not the farm only, but the whole wide world is a place "to grow souls."

ARE WOMEN NATURALLY DESPONDENT?

A prominent writer so claims. Women are constituted with a delicate organism and in nine cases out of ten mental depression may be attributed to an abnormal condition of the system which expresses itself in nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dizziness, causing constant misery and as a result despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, is the one great remedy for this condition. It goes to the root of the trouble and overcomes despondency.

Sylphs of the surf are they? Riding the waves like fairy sprites. Through fleck and foam of the ocean's spray They revel in the "deep's" delights.

SOCIETY'S VACATION.

What! Not take a rest from the strenuous life of living at home? Ah me, You surely don't know us women, I ween; because, old boy, you see our nerves are all strained to the snapping point—we're tired and wan and worn—We don't want to get out where the air is new and fashion don't tread on our corn.

We want to hie off to a seaside resort, or hide away in the hills, Where all day long, 'mid flowers and pines we listen to songs of the rills.

We want to be where tight gowns are cut out and high-heeled shoes don't go—

We want to be free to whistle or shout, or loll around on the ground,

And should we feel like climbing a tree we don't want men around.

We've primed and puffed and padded (our lists) and nibbled at dainty pink teas

When, fact, dear boy, our appetites called for mutton and capers and peas.

We've puckered our mouths and talked horse talk and spread on the Newport style,

When, honest, we felt like yelling so loud you'd hear it for over a mile.

So, blessed the cycle that moves on the time when summer vacation is here—

We're off to romp and roll in the sand Good-bye—ta, ta, my dear!

A. U. Mayfield in Nashville American.

Envelope Sham—

The old-fashioned "sham" is fast disappearing, and in its place we have the envelope sham, or the "over-pillowslip." Shams were always unsatisfactory things to keep in place, all sorts of laborious devices being needed to keep them up. Besides, they were exactly what their names implied, "sham," imitation, and anything imitation is always bad (remembering, of course, that the exception only serves to prove the rule).

The new shams, if you insist upon calling them so, are really pillowslips made a size or two too large, so that they will fit easily and quickly over the ordinary, everyday slips. These large slips are sometimes quite elaborate, although they may be left quite plain. The object is to preserve for the pillows an immaculate appearance during the day. The large slips are put on the pillows when the bed is made, and are removed at night, the ordinary under-cases still remaining upon the pillows to receive the wrinkles and the actual wear. Have a care, too, that the new "shams" do not conceal unfresh utility cases, or the sham will have become a despicable thing.

USING SOAP SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulitified coconut oil (which is pure and greasless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use. One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get mulitified coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Ashford, Alabama & Surrounding Territory
Dothan Eagle Bureau—Fellows & Forrester's Store
Edited by Geo. W. Collins

An automobile party passed through our city late yesterday afternoon consisting of Messrs. R. R. Farkas, Joe McKennie and sister, and Felix Leslie, all en route to Albany, Ga., excepting Felix, who was on his way to Catbarr to attend a dance. The Misses Ernestine Crine and Emile McKenzie accompanied them this far to be the guests of Misses Allie McIntyre and Eunice Williams for a few days.

Mrs. Lula Bell McKemie and Miss Allie McIntyre were out of town visitors to the Bluff Springs community yesterday afternoon. Bluff Springs is perhaps one of the best rural schools in the county and the above mentioned young ladies are to teach there the coming season.

Deputies Ross Hornsby and Talmadge May were in our city last night.

Quite a delightful moonlight play was engaged in by several of our children last night.

Esquire N. S. Fellows made his usual call at The Eagle office here this morning.

A noticeable feature of the popularity of The Eagle's daily service here was brought to bear most forcibly with us last night. One of the subscribers informed us that he would discontinue The Eagle till his subscription to another paper expired, when this wife very promptly came to the rescue by advising her husband to let The Eagle come on as it was the paper of her preference, and of course it will continue to go.

Mr. C. C. McIntyre has accepted a position with W. J. Bell at this place. It is usually hard in these hard times for a man to get one job, so friend McIntyre must be peculiarly lucky in now holding two important positions and we believe that he is still on the market for the next best man.

Cotton is coming in rapidly now and from all appearances the 1915 crop will be soon harvested and sold.

Mr. Wesley Tolar, good suburban farmer, is in town this morning.

Mr. J. W. McIntyre informs us that the army worm has invaded his crop and left nothing scarcely but stems, so far as his hay is concerned, and that they are now at work on his cane. This is not the only report of the destruction of the army worm in this section. They seem to be abroad in the line and are leaving destruction in their wake.

Mr. J. H. Knight of Pansey, passed through our city yesterday enroute to Dothan.

Mr. S. E. Pate went to Hartford yesterday in the interest of the Holman live stock business.

Left at Fellows and Forrester's store, a package of garden seed, consisting of several varieties. Owner will please call for same.

Rev. Lumpkin and Prof. Cassidy are still out in the interest of the school.

Hon. A. E. Pace is in our city today on legal business.

Miss Leenie McDougal is visiting here today.

Miss Winnie Sellers is also among the Panama City pleasure seekers from Ashford this week.

We are requested to state that there will be a teachers' reception entertainment at the school house next Monday night. Our assistants are all expected to be in by that time and everybody is invited to be out and give them a hearty welcome.

Mr. Helton Harrison from down on Rocky is an Ashford visitor today.

Mr. J. T. White, a very respectable Washingtonian is shaking hands with his many friends here today.
